

Identity Theft. Solved.

May 14, 2007

SentryBay Announces Partnership with Spendvision

SentryBay announced today the signing of a partnership agreement with Spendvision (www.spendvision.com) – a provider of world leading expense management solutions.

Spendvision will incorporate EntryProtect, SentryBay's patent pending anti-key logging technology into its online Spendvision.com solution for selected customers. This will provide an additional unique feature for the Spendvision.com offering as well as world-leading security.

The proprietary Spendvision.com technology enables businesses to map and aggregate transactions from a number of different billing sources such as corporate and purchasing cards, fuel cards, personal expense claims and mobile phones.

Spendvision will also take a reselling role within the partnership, marketing EntryProtect to key international customers. SentryBay personnel will work alongside Spendvision business development personnel operating from their London, New York and Melbourne offices.

Chief Operating Officer Marcus Whittington feels the partnership with Spendvision has many synergies. "We believe Spendvision has the most advanced technology in this area and has huge prospects. Our technologies are complementary, business philosophy aligned and we both have high growth plans over the next few years. We welcome this partnership and believe it will produce excellent results for both parties".

Spendvision offers one of the world's leading expense management solutions. It substantially improves the cost effectiveness and management control of handling low value, high volume transactions. Spendvision has offices in London, New York, Melbourne and Auckland, and provides expense management solutions to business customers from a number of diverse industry sectors, worldwide.

SentryBay Corporation develop specialist anti-key logging and access management technology for enterprises. Our solutions assist financial institutions, telecommunications companies, e-commerce companies, government agencies and software providers. SentryBay has offices in London, Los Angeles and Auckland.